

September 4, 2021

HHS - Xavier Becerra

CDC - Rochelle Walensky, Daniel Jernigan, Advisory Committee on Immunization Practices

FDA - Janet Woodcock, Peter Marks, Paul Richards

NIH – Anthony Fauci, Alex Trogias

We are a large and ever-growing group of Americans who have suffered severe and ongoing neurological adverse reactions to the COVID vaccines. We believed in the science behind the vaccine and in the messaging that your agencies continue to promote claiming that these vaccines are necessary and safe. Never did we dream that our regulatory agencies would fail us when we suffered an adverse reaction to these vaccines. Because of your failure to promptly investigate our reactions and educate the medical community, our search for much-needed medical care has been overwhelmingly fruitless.

We are writing, once again, to ask for help; acknowledgement that these reactions exist. Doctors tell us repeatedly that if neurological reactions were occurring, the medical community would be promptly notified by the CDC and FDA. Public disclosure of these reactions will allow the medical community to provide appropriate diagnoses and treatment plans. Only then can we start to heal.

From our sick beds, our efforts to inform you began as early as December 2020 via VAERS, VSAFE, MedWatch, phone calls, letters, and emails. After months of failed individual attempts to receive any substantive response from your agencies, we unified and wrote a group signed letter to the CDC, FDA and the White House dated May 24, 2021. In this letter we described who we are, the nature of our reactions, our plight, and our complete inability to receive medical care because our physicians had not been properly informed of the full scope of possible adverse reactions to the vaccines.

Our letter was a plea for help, begging for you to hear us; to believe us. We were asking for you to pave the way for the medical community to become aware of these reactions. Now, months later, every single word drafted in our original letter is just as relevant today as it was then. Nothing has changed for us except that our numbers keep growing. We remain without medical care, unable to heal, unable to gain any traction with medical teams, researchers, or state and county health departments.

Due to delay on your part, sadly, many have suffered further deterioration of both their physical and mental health related to delayed and/or grossly mismanaged medical care. The medical community remains unaware of the knowledge you have possessed since December 2020. Because this is not recognized, we are unable to file for very necessary medical exemptions and disability. Even filing claims with the CICP has been halted because this is not an acknowledged adverse reaction.

You and your agency have been made fully aware that a group of vaccine-injured individuals have enrolled and participated in research being conducted at the NIH. We know from multiple phone conversations, emails, and a Zoom meeting with a group of our vaccine-injured physicians that you are also fully aware that our efforts to obtain help through a plethora of medical resources has reached a dead-end. You have the data. You have the research. You have acknowledged this to us (privately), and to others. Yet nothing has been said or done publicly.

Until you acknowledge us, we simply do not exist.

The experts at the NIH have stated that they believe these reactions are treatable and that early intervention is key to reducing the severity and duration of these disabling reactions. Given that these adverse reactions are being denied recognition, it is impossible for those who are injured to receive any early intervention and, therefore people remain hopelessly injured. Acknowledgement from the CDC and the FDA would serve as the trigger to treat.

We did our part to protect ourselves, our families, and our communities. We understand that we are in the minority of vaccinated individuals, but that is no excuse not to help us. Other drugs, vaccines, and medical devices cause harm to small minorities, yet these minorities are readily identified and receive treatment as appropriate. The COVID vaccines should not be an exception to this as your agencies are legally obligated to help victims such as us.

After suffering for months, our lives remain altered. We need you to do your duty and fulfill your responsibility to ensure thorough review and evaluation of these vaccines, including known adverse reactions. Until the FDA and CDC publicly recognize these adverse neurological injuries to the COVID vaccines, we are at a complete standstill. We will remain sick, marginalized, and abandoned.

Sincerely,

[Signatures redacted – Group signed copy sent to the CDC and FDA]